Meet the authors

Lynn Machin is an award leader, senior lecturer and a supervisor for students undertaking doctoral studies within the School of Education at Staffordshire University. She has more than 25 years' experience of working within further and higher education. Many of these years have been spent designing and delivering Initial Teacher Training for trainees who work, or want to work, in the further education sector. Her current research interests are situated in the exploration of how students can develop their capacities to learn and grow as self-directed and autonomous learners. As well as having written and co-authored several books for teachers within further education including A Complete Guide to the Level 5 Diploma in Education and Training and A Complete Guide to the Level 4 Certificate in Education and Training, Lynn has also written several other books including Supporting Primary Teaching and Learning (aimed at teaching assistants).

Duncan Hindmarch is award leader for and senior lecturer within the School of Education at Staffordshire University. With a background in teaching English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL), he has over 17 years of teaching experience. Duncan is a Senior Fellow of the Higher Education Academy and has led development and implementation of ESOL, Initial Teacher Training and Education programmes. As well as having written and co-authored several books for teachers within further education including A Complete Guide to the Level 5 Diploma in Education and Training and A Complete Guide to the Level 4 Certificate in Education and Training, Duncan has also written several other books including Supporting Primary Teaching and Learning.

Sandra Murray is a lecturer within the School of Education at Staffordshire University. Sandra, having taught for many years in a further education college, has a wide range of experience supporting and teaching teachers in the further education sector and has been teaching on Initial Teacher Education programmes since 2006. Her particular research interest is inspirational and outstanding teaching. She has written and co-authored several books for teachers within further education, including A Complete Guide to the Level 5 Diploma in Education and Training and A Complete Guide to the Level 4 Certificate in Education and Training.

Tina Richardson is an award leader and senior lecturer within the School of Education at Staffordshire University. Tina has taught in compulsory education, further education and higher education. For the last 15 years, she has been involved in teacher training for further education, in particular the subject specialist qualifications for teachers. Her particular research interest is the use of metacognitive reading strategies in the Functional Skills classroom. As well as teacher training books, including A Complete Guide to the Level 5 Diploma in Education and Training and A Complete Guide to the Level 4 Certificate in Education and Training, Tina has co-authored a book on using e-readers in the classroom.

Fiona Hall is an award leader for the BA in Education within the School of Education at Staffordshire University. She has more than 20 years' experience of working within primary, further and higher education. She has also been involved in teacher training in further education, undertaking teacher observations. Her current research interests are situated in the exploration of teaching assistant practice in schools. Fiona has co-authored Supporting Primary Teaching and Learning.

You will find more information about the authors and their research areas, as well as useful information about the further and higher education sectors, on their website: www.teachwriteresearch.com.

Preface

ABOUT THIS BOOK AND WHAT EACH CHAPTER COVERS

Training to be a teacher within the further education (FE) and skills sector can be an exciting and transforming learning experience. Studying for a level 3 Award in Education and Training (AET) is part of that process of transformation. The intention of this book is to support you in your studies as you make this transition and as you work towards achieving your AET qualification. It does this through:

- coverage of all of the core units that are in the level 3 AET qualification;
- alignment of chapters to the standards underpinning the level 3 AET qualification;
- encouraging you to reflect upon your practice;
- providing case study scenarios and examples;
- indicating sources of information for further in-depth study;
- being research informed and written by teacher educators with trainee teachers' needs in mind.

The topics, questions and activities within each chapter of this book have been tailored to the demands of the AET qualification and are aligned to the standards framework that can be found on the Education Training Foundation (ETF) website. You will find a table at the beginning of the book that shows which standards each of the chapters covers. In addition to this, in this book there is a chapter that focuses on helping you to develop your study skills, including advice about reading critically, note-taking, presenting your work, referencing correctly and assignment writing.

Each chapter begins by providing a visual concept map of the topics to be covered as well as a list of the chapter's objectives. Points for reflection are followed by detailed text accompanied by questions and activities that will provide you with an opportunity to check your understanding and assess your learning. Case studies bring the text to life and show how the theory can be applied in practice. At the end of each chapter you will find a summary of the main ideas and suggestions for further reading. At the back of the book you will find a helpful glossary of acronyms and useful examples of key templates that are used by teachers who work in FE.

What each chapter covers

The introduction and the chapters in this book cover the following topics.

Introduction

This provides you with a succinct overview of how policy has influenced the development of the FE sector. In particular, it provides you with a backdrop to the implementation, purpose and requirements of the AET.

Chapter 1: Roles, responsibilities and relationships in education and training

This chapter focuses on your roles and responsibilities as a teacher. It introduces you to some of the legislation and regulations that you will need to be aware of as a teacher in the FE sector; for example, the Equality Act (2010).

Chapter 2: Inclusive teaching and learning approaches

This chapter provides you with information about how to engage all learners in activities as well as how and why different approaches to teaching and learning should be utilised.

Chapter 3: Facilitating learning and development for individuals

This chapter concentrates on the importance of tutorials, learning outside of the classroom and working in a classroom on individual activities.

Chapter 4: Facilitating learning and development in groups

This chapter explores some of the concepts of learning in groups, ways of facilitating learning and managing behaviour when learners are working in groups. It also identifies a few of the theoretical frameworks that support this method of learning.

Chapter 5: Assessment of learners and understanding principles and practices of assessment

This chapter outlines purposes, principles and practices of assessments. It develops understanding of the vital role assessment plays in informing learners, teachers, your institution and other relevant stakeholders of progress and future development needs.

Chapter 6: The microteach

This chapter draws together information from the other chapters and gives you guidance about preparing lesson plans and activities, delivering a session, formatively assessing learning and managing behaviour in the classroom.

Chapter 7: Essay writing

This chapter provides you with guidance about essay writing and developing your study skills. As well as the provision of practical examples it contains exercises that you can try out either on your own or with others in your group. This chapter also provides you with information about possible progression routes.

SAMPLE

Appendix 1: Mapping the level 3 AET qualification with the LSIS units

In order to be awarded an AET qualification you need to achieve:

- 12 credits: this is the total credit value of the AET qualification.

These credits are made up of:

- 3 credits from the mandatory units in Group A;
- 9 credits from the optional units in Group B and Group C.

Some of the optional units require you to be teaching and for you to be observed in practice.

Unit title	Practice and observation requirement	Credits	Notes
Mandatory Group A
Understanding roles, responsibilities and	No	3	This will allow trainee teachers to start on programmes and pass a unit without a practical teaching element
Optional Group B
Understanding and using inclusive teaching and learning approaches in education and training (Education and Training unit)	Yes	6	For this optional unit there is a requirement to undertake micro-teaching for assessment purposes
Facilitate learning and development for individuals (Learning and Development unit)	Yes	6	This optional unit assesses occupational competence and requires trainee teachers to be assessed in a real work environment
Facilitate learning and development in groups (Learning and Development unit)	Yes	6	This optional unit assesses occupational competence and requires trainee teachers to be assessed in a real work environment
Optional Group C
Understanding assessment in education and training (Education and Training unit)	No	3	This will allow trainee teachers to start on programmes and pass a unit without a practical teaching element

Unit title	Practice and observation requirement	Credits	Notes
